

The Trouble With Spikol

A blog about mental illness

« Wal-Mart: Not evil enough to ignore | Main | Sorry sorry sorry »

Cute fix: Kitten is in love with pillow

Posted by liz on November 28, 2006 03:46 PM | Permalink

COMMENTS

poor thing! he's trying to nurse.

Posted by: july | November 28, 2006 04:12 PM

My fully grown cat still does that to my beautiful handknit afghans. He gets a nub of wool in his mouth and starts suckling. It's cute, but also sorta creepy.

Posted by: debbie | November 28, 2006 09:06 PM

there's this thing called "the catsifier" for those kitties with an oral fixation. their slogan is "because cats suck!" hee.

<http://www.catsifier.com/>

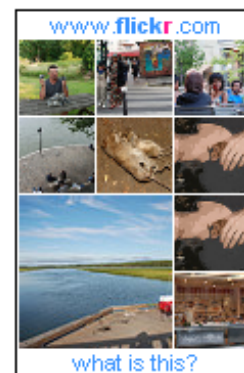

thanks for the cute fix. i surely needed it.

Posted by: ms. jared | November 29, 2006 06:54 PM

About

Liz Spikol is senior contributing editor of Philadelphia Weekly. She writes the award-winning column The Trouble With Spikol, which began as a chronicle of her struggle with mental illness, and has since expanded into humorous musings on everything from graphic novels to how to use a mop. She also writes the paper's book review column, Lit Gloss. This blog -- named one of the Top 10 Bipolar Blogs of 2007 by PsychCentral -- is about mental illness policy, news, personal journeys and more.

Archives

- December 2007
- November 2007
- October 2007
- September 2007
- August 2007
- July 2007